Cal OES INLAND REGION

Oroville Dam Spillway Incident

- On 02/07/17 at 1000 hours, the Department of Water Resources (DWR) notified the California State Warning Center of an issue with the main spillway at Oroville Dam.
 - At this time, there is no concern with the Dam itself. There is no impact to the public.
 - Flows down the main spillway are currently being dictated by the models that are being updated every 6 hours.
 - Oroville Dam Spillway flow was increased from 55,000 cubic feet per second (cfs) to 65,000 cfs at about 0230 hours on 2/10/17. Total Lake Oroville Complex outflow increased from 55,000 to 65,000 cfs.
 - Field command has been delegated authority to potentially increase the release from the main spillway by 5,000 cfs at a time, if conditions allow. At this time, they are limiting releases in an effort to protect the power plant (due to turbulence at the bottom of the spillway) and DWR high tension towers (erosion on the right wall which is inching towards the towers). Although losing the towers will not impact the power grid, it will impact the dam's ability to produce power long term.
 - Monitoring the situation 24 hours a day continues to be a priority. The most current models have the emergency spillway engaging sometime Saturday morning. Efforts are being made to ramp up releases from the main spillway to minimize, and if possible, avoid utilizing the emergency spillway altogether.
 - A Cal OES Fire Branch Assistant Chief has been assigned as an Agency Representative
 - A Cal OES Deputy Regional Administrator has been assigned the Incident Command Post
 - 3 Cal OES Public Information Officers have been deployed to the Joint Information Center

9-1-1 Outage, Plumas and Sierra Counties

- On 02/09/17 at 1424 hours, Cal OES 9-1-1 Branch reported that four AT&T Central Office locations are isolated:
 - Portola, Plumas County
 - Blairsden, Plumas County
 - Loyalton, Sierra County
 - Sierraville, Sierra County
- Both Plumas and Sierra County Sheriff Offices report, residents are unable to place 9-1-1 calls on their landline/hardline phones.
- Both Sheriff Offices report that residents are able to make 9-1-1 calls via cellphone.
- AT&T does not know the reason for the outage at this time nor do they have an expected ETR.
- Due to recent severe weather, flooded roads and debris have made restoration efforts difficult
- At 1934 hours, the Cal OES 911 Branch advised that all reported outages have been cleared. There are currently no pending outages to report

Sacramento Weir, Sacramento County

- Sacramento Weir is being operated to maintain stages in the Sacramento River at I Street below 30 feet. DWR staff opened 10 gates on the Sacramento Weir on 02/08/17 at 2300. On 02/09/17, an additional 15 gates (25 total) on the Sacramento Weir were opened at 0800 hours then an additional 21 gates (46 total) on the Sacramento Weir were opened at 1900 today to maintain stages in the Sacramento River at I Street below about 30 feet. The Sacramento Weir has 48 gates in total. Sacramento Maintenance Yard is monitoring stages at the weir to ensure operational criteria are maintained.

Bucks Lake Dam, Town of Pulga, Bucks Creek, Plumas County

- On 02/09/17 at 1848 hours, the CSWC received notification from PG&E regarding a high flow condition on the river due to the recent storms.
 - There is no danger of the dam failing
 - There are no unmet needs or requests for state assistance.

Key Points

The last in this current series of storms will finally be winding down today. Drier and warmer conditions are expected for the northern 2/3 of California while the south remains wet into Sunday. Although precipitation is decreasing, flooding will continue right into next week.

- Flooding along unregulated rivers, streams, roadways, and low-lying areas today and running high through the weekend.
- Heavy snow will cause hazardous travel over Sierra passes with travel delays likely today with lingering impacts over the weekend.
- Winds will be strong enough to down trees and cause prolonged power outages today through the weekend.
- Rockslides and mudslides possible, especially along mountain slopes and steep grades today.
- Thunderstorms are possible today, with the potential for small hail, very gusty winds, and flash flooding.
- Debris flows are also possible over burn scars with periods of brief heavy rain (greater than 0.50" per hour) Friday.
- The next storm in the upcoming series will begin to impact CA coastline by Wednesday next week.

WEATHER OF CONCERN

Weather of Concern

- Two atmospheric river storms with heavy precipitation impacted and will continue to impact northern California this week. Heavy rainfall fell on Tuesday with another round of heavy rainfall falling on Thursday with showers into Friday. Starting on Saturday, California is expecting a period of clear weather into Thursday or Friday of next week. Most flood control reservoirs are at or above top of conservation levels and many regions of the state have saturated ground.

Active Weather Warnings, Watches and Advisories by County:

http://www.wrh.noaa.gov/sto/brief/www_bc_cal.php

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

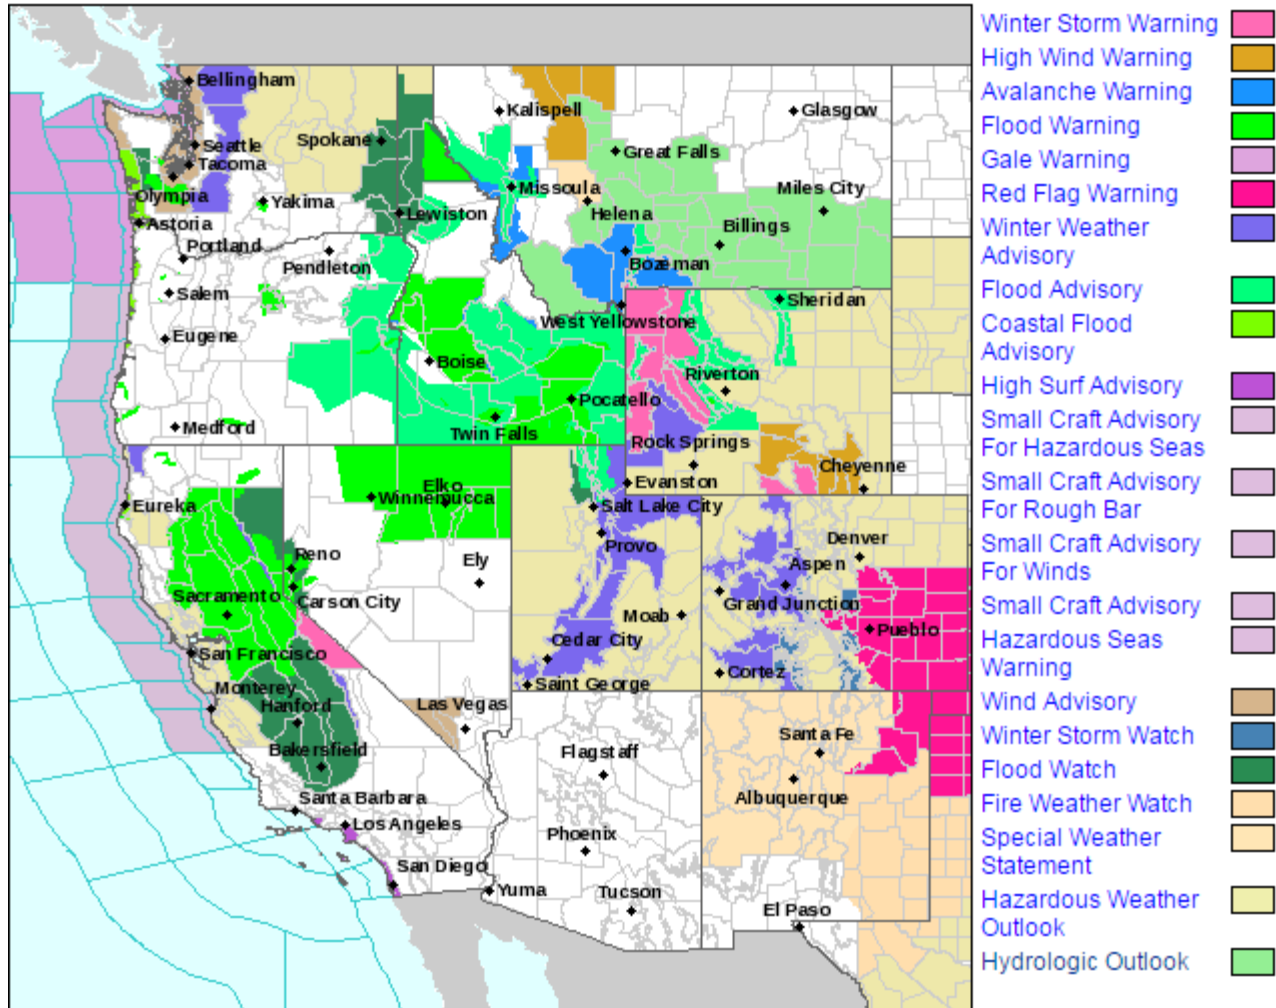

The storm system moving into Northern California today will continue to produce moderate to heavy precipitation with snow levels above 7000 feet. SE to SW winds will gust to 50-60 mph in many open areas and 80 mph or higher in the most wind-prone mountain locations. The main cold front associated with this storm is still offshore, but it will move through the region from west to east later today. Once the front passes winds will diminish and turn W-NW and snow levels will begin to drop as the steady precipitation turns to showers. Snow levels will gradually drop to 3000 feet in the north and 4500 feet in the south by midday Friday as widespread showers continue in the mountains and scattered showers continue in the valleys. Showers will come to an end prior to sunrise Saturday. High pressure will move overhead Saturday through Tuesday and produce warm and dry conditions with occasionally gusty N-E/offshore surface winds from the western Sierra slopes to the coast. On Wednesday the next approaching Pacific storm system will begin to spread clouds and increasing southerly winds over the region, and rain may move onshore overnight. That storm system is expected to impact the region through Friday, followed by another one a couple days later.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

A Pacific storm will bring showers to Central California through Saturday morning and to Southern California through Saturday night. Most locations will receive an additional 0.50 to 1.50 inches of rainfall with this storm. The snow level will drop to between 5,000 and 6,000 feet by Saturday morning. South to west winds of 15 to 30 mph with gusts to 50 mph will surface across the mountain ridges and desert passes through tonight. Temperatures will cool to near normal today, with mid 40s to mid 50s across the mountains and upper 50s and 60s in the valleys. Temperatures will cool another 5 degrees Saturday. A ridge of high pressure will build into California from the Pacific Ocean bringing a warming and drying trend to the region Sunday through the middle of next week. North to northeast winds of 20 to 40 mph with gusts to 60 mph will surface across the mountains and below the canyons and passes of Southern California Saturday night through Sunday night. At this time, it looks as though a series of Pacific storms will move into the West Coast bringing periods of heavy rain to the entire area along with strong south to west winds across the mountains and deserts starting Thursday.
